FORWARD

In the ever-changing energy markets with fluctuations of demand, prices and governmental regulations, quality of service remains at the forefront, in lieu of massive crews trying to dominate large areas. Trinity Energy Services has always positioned itself on the side of quality.

Our main office is located near downtown Houston, Texas and our Louisiana office is located in Covington, Louisiana which has replaced New Orleans as the corporate center for oil and gas companies. Our roots extend back over thirty five years and our focus has been on being a client oriented services company. Expertise and knowledge are the primary demands of clients along with trust and integrity. Trinity Energy Services has successfully assembled a team of older, highly experienced landmen along with a determined and focused younger generation.

To survive and flourish in the multitude of industry downturns, our reputation has provided stability. Company needs and demands have evolved over the past thirty five years and the scope of work has greatly increased to include all aspects of the exploration and development process. The managing member of Trinity Energy Services, Jack Moores, represents the fifth generation in this industry.

We provide an appropriate balance of expertise as needed on a project basis. Our office staff is kept to a minimum as the work is generated in the field and courthouses. Trinity Energy Services is an independent service company providing expert consulting and land services, now and in the past, to many companies including but not limited to:
